

The Rainbow Bridge

The body is the Rainbow Bridge, the transformer of heavenly light into manifested form of physical matter. The body is the microcosm of the macrocosmic universe—it is a mini universe of consciousness for the purpose of expressing itself in the world of form. On one level, the body may be regarded as a great transducer, implementing a continuous process of translation, reducing the incoming current from one state to another one that is more and more understandable to the body. Thus, the magnetism of the incoming current from the cosmos becomes translated to physical matter that builds up the body's cells. And as the body evolves toward greater health, robustness, complexity, and beauty, a person's life also evolves in a similar manner, as life is a reflection of the mind/body. Our lives emerge as crystallized thought projected into matter, where thought comes from the level of mind/body.

As the incoming current through the organ centers illuminates the mind/body, cell memory is also activated. Every cell in the body carries knowledge and experience of all realities in all dimensions—every cell is also a mini universe. And as the direct light of your Higher Self or the Creator Principle enters through the Crown and descends through the central channel unimpeded to bathe all the organ centers, ignite the heart, and anchor you to the atomic matrix of the great Earth Mother, the illuminated cells release or reveal their secrets through the activated DNA codes, and what you manifest is deeply aligned with the wisdom of all time.

Clearing and evolving the organ or energy centers of the body as well as repairing and activating the damaged DNA are thus critical in our ability to manifest our lives free of distortions.

Transduction Process through the Body

Manifestation occurs from a thought or desire from the Self (or Higher Self) that is down stepped at each of the successive levels of the organ centers in the body. If the organ centers are not fully activated, are blocked or have distortions from suppressive programming in life, there is loss or distortion of information from one step to the next. The result is that what comes in as inspiration and support from the higher realms has no opportunity to manifest in outer reality. Furthermore, if the Crown is not activated then nothing of substance may even enter—we are then cut off from the Self and will experience life as empty and meaningless.

The basic transduction process through the body is as follows:

The hair organ draws in the magnetic blueprints for a person's evolution in the body from the cosmos. Cosmic influences, information, essences, insights, inspirations, solutions, etc. in the form of magnetic energy are drawn in through the hair, activating the crystal organ and brain center, where ideas are formed (the Crown). The blueprints you draw in are personal—they are an intelligent consciousness that belongs to you. Though they are based on universal principles, the specific combination of what you draw in as magnetic information supports your own personal detailed plan of capabilities and actions for the lifetime, and this is orchestrated by the Higher Self.

The magnetic codes are then passed down to the pineal gland, which turns them into light compositions. The pineal takes the light of Self from the Crown and funnels it through the DNA system after clarifying all the codes. Like rays of sun, the pineal shines life-giving information to the body in the form of light. The clarified DNA is like a prismatic tube, which transports and refracts this light of Self through the body. The pineal is the center of one's identity and master of the DNA codes.

Universal truth enters at the Crown and is made into your own wisdom through the identity of the pineal. The pineal gland then shines the light codes to the medulla oblongata—the master of the nervous system. The medulla is stimulated to translate these codes into electrical patterns based on input from the DNA system. The nervous system takes these electrical codes and sends out signals that teach the body what to do. Thus the brain encodes the body via the nervous system—which is the body encoder. The Medulla is a key center of intelligence that is damaged in many at the present time, due to overstimulation, incorrect stimulation, incessant noise on the airwaves, EMFs, etc. And a damaged Medulla center causes all manner of breakdown in the body.

The Medulla Oblongata electrifies the glandular/lymphatic systems through stimulation of the Thyroid center. The power of our perception and cognition to penetrate into the spiritual behind matter determines the level of spiritual power that flows into the thyroid center, and impacts on the quality of the endocrines and hormones, which are spiritual schemata. Upon this stimulus, the thyroid produces chemicals and alters the chemistry of the body system and air system coming into the lungs. The air gets coded by the glandular and lymphatic systems as the chemicals are mixed with the incoming air. The lung center correspond to the Heart chakra. The encoded air then passes through the bones. The bones are associated the stomach organ center (that corresponds to the Solar Plexus). So the lung center communicates and stimulates the stomach center by the air that encodes the bone system. The bones vibrate upon this stimulus, which changes the organs centered in the womb/prostate center.

Organs have a base of water. The bones vibrate up the water and in this manner they change the chemistry of the organs. The organs respond in turn, by transmitting codes for new blood flow. The organs correspond to the Sacral chakra. The organs tell the blood what they need. The blood then activates to fulfil those needs. The rectum center is the master of the blood and corresponds to the Root chakra. Activating the red region (rectum) builds new body or new tissue via the blood. The body is then mirrored into outer reality.

There is upward feedback as well, as the blood is a special fluid that flows the desires of the individual/soul through the entire body. The Heart is the center that can hear the voice of the blood. In this manner, we can know what is aligned with our being through the Heart center. As well, the Heart communicates this information to the Pineal center, which interprets it into a sense of inner morality and conscience. An etheric stream of energy can be observed from the Heart to the Pineal—it is a beautiful violet stream in those of high morality, and a murky brown in those of an immoral nature.

The Root is also connected to the feet, which is the download center of your being, in much the same way as the Crown connects to the Hair, which is the upload center.

A blueprint or idea passes through the entire physical body in this manner—from Hair to Feet, Crown to Rectum—and becomes manifest in outer reality from the convergence of God/Spirit and Goddess/Earth energies. We really can't speak of conscious manifestation if either Crown (hair) or Root (rectum/feet) is not activated. Try as we may to think positively, if we are not connected to the Sources of creation—God and Goddess forces—we will not be successful in manifesting our desires.

When we have blocked or distorted energy centers—through being denatured, by toxins, by our wounding in childhood, by absorbing the distortions of those around us, and so forth—every step of the transduction process loses or distorts information, and the translation from blueprint or idea into manifested form is not at all assured. And when we cannot manifest easily with our body's inner power connected to the unlimited Source, we will attempt by force and will experience life as a great struggle.

Furthermore, what enters in through the Hair/Crown comes from our Higher Dimensional bodies (astral, causal, and higher), and this information can also be distorted at the level of astral and causal bodies. When these bodies and centers are increasingly cleared and stimulated, we find that we can move ideas from conception to realization with greater ease.

The Inner Mastery Tools work at the level of the body and higher dimensions, to clear the blocked, dense, or slow energies in the organ centers, among other things. The Rainbow Activations and Codes Tool in particular, is dedicated to evolving the organ centers and chakras. The DNA Illumination Tool and the DNA Crystalline Activations Tool are available to IMT practitioners to support DNA repair and activation. (The RACT will be released in the second half of 2011. Visit the website for details www.innermasterytools.com).
